New Titles Catalogue

Autumn/Winter 2021

Welcome

This year Policy Press (PP) is celebrating 25 years since it was launched and Bristol University Press (BUP) is marking its fifth anniversary.

We publish pioneering scholarship and social commentary which aims to influence research, education, policy, practice and wider culture and thereby support social change.

Since the beginning, our mission has been to show the damage done to individuals and society by social problems and structural inequalities and how enlightened, evidence-based interventions can mediate this and positively change lives.

Social challenges, from the local to the global, have of course become greater and ever more urgent: as 2020 has showed us, we can no longer talk about social justice without focusing on racial, gender and environmental justice.

In this catalogue, we are delighted to present our new titles for Autumn and Winter 2021 and announce our new Open Access Global Social Challenges Journal (pages 4-5). Despite the challenges of the last 18 months, I hope that our work can help us to move closer to a society that is caring and compassionate to its people and planet, challenging injustice and discrimination in all its forms.

Global Social Challenges Journal

NON-PROFIT, OPEN ACCESS
PUBLISHING FOR CHANGE

Bristol University Press is delighted to announce its first fully open access journal.

"I'm proud to see Bristol University Press launching this important new journal, which promises to address the most urgent complexities of global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines to inform policy and practice."

PROFESSOR JUDITH SQUIRES, DEPUTY VICE-CHANCELLOR AND PROVOST, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

How can we reimagine society in an era of climate change, pandemic, hunger, poverty, questions of racial, ethnic and gender justice and other pressing global societal challenges? Significant threats and dangers lie ahead of us, but so do opportunities, as new ways of being, thinking and doing emerge. This new, fully open access journal aims to facilitate thinking about these positive new trajectories and to become the journal of choice to address the complexities of global social challenges across disciplines and fields.

It will be the first such journal to be based in the social sciences while also engaging with research from humanities, arts and STEM. Including marginalised, minority and indigenous world views, the journal will be an important home for research that contributes to the creation of alternative futures that acknowledge past injustices and are socially and environmentally just and sustaining.

Woke Capitalism

How Corporate Morality is Sabotaging Democracy

Carl Rhodes, University of Technology Sydney

"This insightful book traces the history and manifestations of 'woke' ideas in relation to big business, capitalism and democracy – reading it will reveal how awake you really are!"

THOMAS CALVARD, UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH BUSINESS SCHOOL

"As the world reels from the impact of COVID-19 on people's lives, what role do corporations play in our democratic processes? Is the concept of 'woke' being used to further corporate interests, and deepen current levels of inequality? This accessible and compelling book addresses these questions and provides new insights."

KATE KENNY, J. E. CAIRNES SCHOOL OF BUSINESS AND ECONOMICS, NUI GALWAY

"Businesses increasingly talk about value, purpose and responsibility. In this beautifully written book, Carl Rhodes asks us to consider whether these companies can be trusted with our collective futures. Can we trust corporations when they speak about equality and justice?"

MARTIN PARKER, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

From Nike's adoption of Colin Kaepernick to Gillette's engagement with the toxic masculinity debate, the 21st century has seen a sharp increase in corporations taking over public morality, a phenomenon which has come to be known as 'woke capitalism'. Carl Rhodes takes us on a lively and fascinating journey through woke capitalism, from 1950s corporate social responsibility, through 1980s neoliberalism, alongside the adoption and mutation of the term 'woke' from Black American culture, bringing us right up to current-day debates. Examining the political causes that woke capitalism has adopted and the social causes that it has not, he argues that this surreptitious extension of capitalism has serious implications for us all.

This Separated Isle

Invisible Britain

Edited by Paul Sng, writer and filmmaker

"We British folk are all over the place. We come from all over the place, we move all over the place, and our ideas are all over the place. This book reflects that. Here are pictures, and words, with a real sense of place. I love it."

BENJAMIN ZEPHANIAH, POET

"Arguments about Brexit, immigration and wokeness are fuelled by the secular decline of imperialism and decades of deindustrialisation. This stunning book of diverse stories and wonderful portraits shows us that removing the imperialist baggage of the UK state presents us with new cultural and political opportunities."

IRVINE WELSH, WRITER

"As bleakly poetic and forlornly beautiful as its title suggests, there's very little I've seen recently that more encapsulates what an odd, fractured and divided little nation we've become – though with the potent flipside that the voices and images in this book represent mini beacons of hope in their quiet defiance and inspiring determination to build a better and braver world."

DANIEL YORK, ACTOR AND DIRECTOR

This Separated Isle explores how concepts of 'Britishness' reveal an inclusive range of opinions and understandings about our national character. Featuring a diverse range of fascinating photographic portraits of people from across the UK and their accompanying narrative stories, this landmark book examines the relationship between identity and nationhood, revealing not only what divides us, but also the ties that bind us together as a nation.

The Education Debate

4th Edition

Stephen J. Ball, UCL Institute of Education

"My students need a book that introduces them to policy analysis in a rigorous yet accessible manner. this is it."

MEG MAGUIRE, KING'S COLLEGE LONDON

"Policy researchers are deeply indebted to Ball's detailed analysis that underpins the sociological contribution in this book."

HELEN GUNTER, UNIVERSITY OF MANCHESTER

"This brilliant book should be compulsory reading for all sociologists of education everywhere, and for all those interested in education."

BOB LINGARD, UNIVERSITY OF QUEENSLAND

"This invaluable new edition of this powerful and provocative book offers fresh insights into political context and policy narratives."

PHILLIP BROWN, CARDIFF UNIVERSITY

Education policy in England is constantly evolving and becoming increasingly incoherent and it is therefore becoming harder to keep up with, and make sense of, all the changes. This bestselling book looks at the role of the UK as a social laboratory for global education policy.

Covering key concepts, it examines new areas, including:

- global education policy mobility;
- edu-business and philanthropy as policy actors;
- marketisation of education;
- increase in performance gap;
- poverty and austerity;
- impact of COVID-19 on schools and in education policy;
- new forms of governance.

This extensively updated fourth edition by the key author in the field will maintain its place as the most important text on education policy and makes essential reading for all students and anyone interested in education policy more generally.

Policing the Pandemic

How Public Health Becomes Public Order

Lambros Fatsis, University of Brighton and Melayna Lamb, independent writer and academic

"Makes a compelling case for a critical assessment of what the COVID-19 pandemic can tell us about policing, health and governance all of the time. Lively, topical and precisely what we need."

PETER SQUIRES, UNIVERSITY OF BRIGHTON

"Offers us an urgent, rigorous and visionary response to a world in which the response to ill health is state violence. The authors provide a thoroughly researched and compelling case for alternatives to policing, not just as a response to disease and infection, but in all areas of public life."

ADAM ELLIOT-COOPER, QUEEN MARY UNIVERSITY OF LONDON

The COVID-19 pandemic has highlighted the inadequacies of the state's response to public health and public order issues through deeply flawed legislation. Written in the context of the #BlackLivesMatter protests, this book explores why law enforcement responses to a public health emergency are prioritised over welfare provision and what this tells us about the state's criminal justice institutions. Informing scholarly, civic and activist thinking on the political nature of policing, it reveals how increasing police powers disproportionately affects Black people and suggests alternative ways of designing public safety beyond a law enforcement context.

A Climate Pact for Europe

How to Finance the Green Deal

Anne Hessel, Doctor of Medicine and Doctor of Chemistry, Jean Jouzel, Laboratoire des Sciences du Climat et de l'Environnement, Paris and Pierre Larroutourou, Member of the European Parliament

"A positive and convincing take on the climate crisis and funding the solution. Emphasising job creation and social justice, the book is very pertinent for the post COVID-19 recovery."

CLAIRIE PAPAZOGLU, ENVIRONMENTAL CONSULTANT

"Climate change is ultimately a consequence of the illusion of eternal material economic growth. This text examines well why the Green Deal can, and must, be part of a war that humanity dare not lose."

JOHN SWEENEY, MAYNOOTH UNIVERSITY

"A pioneering work on how to harness banking and green economics into a mutually reinforcing symbiosis. The authors understand economics and political possibilities and their work is more than timely."

DENIS MACSHANE, FORMER UK MINISTER OF STATE FOR EUROPE

The COVID-19 pandemic gives an opportunity to relaunch global economic systems with a better balance between the social and environmental dimensions. There is a need for a scientifically based step towards a strong Green Deal: a Climate Pact for the EU.

This English translation of a bestselling French book provides a summary of the facts on the climate issue, the solutions available and their costs. It outlines the political advantages and challenges current policy, practice and thinking at a time when populist leaders are transforming politics worldwide. This timely book will contribute to a renewed political vision for the EU, the European Economic Area, the UK and Africa.

Cultural Sexism

The Politics of Feminist Rage in the #MeToo Era

Heather Savigny, Independent Feminist Scholar

"A powerful contextualization of the barriers to change, doing justice to our feminist legacies, while operationalizing the core ground of political, social and media theory. Savigny gives us the clarity and vision to 'rage, reverse and repoliticise'. All men should read this ... it is time to get onboard."

HELEN WOOD, UNIVERSITY OF LANCASTER

Heather Savigny highlights four key traits of cultural sexism – violence, silencing, meritocracy and masculinity – prevalent across the media, entertainment and cultural industries that keep sexist values firmly within popular consciousness. She traces the development of key feminist thinkers before demonstrating how the normalisation of misogyny perpetuates patriarchal values within our everyday social and cultural landscape. She argues that we need to understand why #MeToo was necessary in order to bring about meaningful change.

Women, Media, and Elections

Representation and Marginalization in British Politics

Emily Harmer, University of Liverpool

In the century since women were first eligible to stand and vote in British general elections, they have relied on news media to represent their political perspectives in the public realm.

This book provides a systematic analysis of electoral coverage by charting how women candidates, voters, spouses and party leaders have been portrayed in newspapers since 1918. The result is a fascinating account of both continuity and change in the position of women in British politics.

Snapshots from Home

Mind, Action and Strategy in an Uncertain World

Karin M. Fierke, University of St Andrews

Taking a unique interdisciplinary approach, this book addresses a range of key theoretical debates in politics in order to advance the frontiers of International Relations (IR) theory.

The book bridges two important debates in the field: the case for the relevance of quantum theory to the social sciences and the pressing need for a more global IR. Drawing on key thinkers in political theory, the book examines parallels between quantum physics and ancient Asian traditions – Daoism and Buddhism – and explores their implications for mind, action and strategy in conditions of radical uncertainty. The conclusions drawn illustrate the value of interdisciplinary and global approaches in helping us better understand world politics.

Ideas and the Use of Force in American Foreign Policy

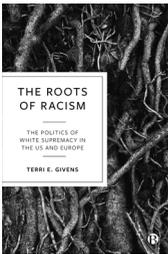

Presidential Decision-Making in a
Post-Cold War World

Morgan T. Rees, Griffith University

Examining the post-Cold War period, this book sets out to explain why and when US presidents choose to use force.

It develops new explanations for variation in the use of force in US foreign policy by theorizing and demonstrating the effects of the displacement and repression of ideas within and across different US presidential administrations, from George H. W. Bush to Donald Trump.

The Roots of Racism

The Politics of White Supremacy in the US and Europe

Terri E. Givens, McGill University and Center for Higher Education

“In this important, timely and much needed comparative analysis, Terri Givens successfully brings together the personal, professional and political, and the different forms of racism and white supremacy in the US and Europe.”

AARON WINTER, UNIVERSITY OF EAST LONDON

This important book examines the past, present and future of racist ideas and politics, showing how policies have developed over a long history of European and White American dominance of political institutions and policies that maintain White supremacy. Givens examines the rise of anti-immigrant, radical-right parties in Europe, the rise of Trumpism in the US and the Brexit vote in the UK. This book provides a vital springboard for people, organisations and politicians who want to dismantle structural racism and discrimination.

What is International Relations?

Knud Erik Jørgensen, Aarhus University

Knud Erik Jørgensen traces International Relations scholarship from its formative interwar years, through to rapid growth in students and researchers in the wake of globalisation.

He examines the resultant widening of scholarship in the field, and the effects that this has had on the global discipline. The result is a concise and challenging appraisal of International Relations, one which both celebrates its value and maps possible future directions.

New Developments in Urban Governance

Rethinking Collaboration in the Age of Austerity

Jonathan S. Davies, De Montfort University et al.

Presenting the findings of a major European Social Research Council (ESRC) project into urban austerity governance in eight cities across the world, this book offers comparative reflections on the myriad experiences of collaborative governance and its limitations.

With international contributors from across the social sciences, the book discusses ways that citizens, activists and local states collaborate and come into conflict in attempting to build just cities.

Flexible Europe

Differentiated Integration, Fairness, and Democracy

Richard Bellamy, University College London,
Sandra Kröger and Marta Lorimer,
University of Exeter

The European Union (EU) is often portrayed as sacrificing national diversity for European unity. This book explores the alternative of a flexible EU based on differentiated rather than uniform integration.

The authors combine normative theory with empirical research on political party actors to assess the desirability and political acceptability of differentiated integration as a means of accommodating heterogeneity in the EU. They examine the circumstances and institutional design needed for flexibility to promote rather than undermine fairness and democracy within and between member states.

A Public Health Emergency of International Concern

Between International Law and Politics

Mark Eccleston-Turner, Keele University and Clare Wenham, London School of Economics and Political Science

As a formal declaration by the World Health Organization, a Public Health Emergency of International Concern (PHEIC) is governed by clear legislation as to what is, and what is not, deemed a global health security threat.

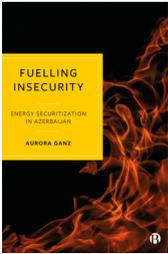

Addressing multiple empirical case studies, including COVID-19, this multidisciplinary book explores the relationship between international law and international relations to interrogate how a PHEIC is declared and its role in how we collectively respond to outbreaks.

Fuelling Insecurity

Energy Securitization in Azerbaijan

Aurora Ganz, University of St Andrews

The politics of Azerbaijan, ‘the land of fire’, are materially and ideologically shaped by energy. This book examines the extensive network of security professionals and the wide range of practices that have spread in Azerbaijan’s energy sector.

It unpacks the interactions of state, supra-state and private security organisations and argues that energy security has enabled and normalised a coercive way of exercising power. This study shows that oppressive energy security practices lead to multiple forms of abuse and poor energy policies.

Jack Corbett, University of Southampton,
Xu Yi-Chong and Patrick Weller, Griffith
University

“A must-read.”

DIANA PANKE, ALBERT-LUDWIGS UNIVERSITY FREIBURG

International Organizations (IOs) are vital institutions in world politics in which cross-border issues can be discussed and global problems managed.

This path-breaking book shows the efforts that small states have made to participate more fully in IO activities. It draws attention to the challenges created by widened participation in IOs and develops an original model of the dilemmas that both IOs and small states face as the norms of sovereign equality and the right to develop coincide.

The Gilets Jaunes and the New Social Contract

Charles Develennes, University of Kent

"Illuminates both our modern condition and the theoretical tradition that has shaped our time."

JAMES MARTEL, SAN FRANCISCO STATE UNIVERSITY

Providing a lively account of the gilets jaunes, the yellow vest movement in France, Develennes assesses what lessons can be drawn from their activities and the impact for the contemporary relationship between state and citizen. He proposes a new relationship between the state and the individual and establishes the necessity of rethinking the modern democratic nature of our representative polities.

The EU-China Security Paradox

Cooperation Against All Odds?

Julia Gurol, University of Freiburg

In this enlightening analysis, Julia Gurol unpicks the complex security relations between the European Union (EU) and China.

She investigates the principles, rationales and shifting dynamics of collaboration on a range of security issues, and their consequences for China, the EU and other regions. She pays particular attention to EU-China relations in the realm of anti-terrorism, anti-piracy and energy security, and disentangles their cooperation efforts in the context of increasing political and economic tensions.

The Limits of Europe

Identities, Spaces, Values

Edited by Russell Foster, King's College London and Jan Grzymiski,
University of Warsaw

Is the European Union (EU) in a state of crisis?

Over recent years, a series of systemic and spontaneous challenges including Brexit, the rise of Euroscepticism and the Eurozone and refugee crises have manifested in landmark moments for European integration.

First published as a special issue of Global Discourse, this edited collection investigates whether these crises are isolated phenomena or symptoms of a deeper malaise across the EU. Experts from across disciplines analyse and rethink the forces which pull Europeans together, as well as those which push them apart.

Spanning the UK, Australia and Canada, this comparative study brings maternal workers' politicized voices to the centre of contemporary debates on childcare, work and gender.

Perrier shows why social reproduction needs to be at the centre of a critical theory of work, care and mothering for post-pandemic times. This is a resonating call to build a cross-sectoral intersectional movement around childcare.

Implementing Citizenship, Nationality and Integration Policies

The Richer, the Poorer

How Britain Enriched the Few and Failed the Poor: A 200-Year History

Edited by Stewart Lansley, Townsend Centre for International Poverty Research, University of Bristol

“An important and illuminating book; an essential antidote to the outdated and iniquitous idea that some people are worth more than others.”

KATE PICKETT, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

For 200 years, Britain’s most powerful elites have been allowed to enrich themselves at the expense of surging inequality and mass poverty. This landmark book charts the roller-coaster history of both rich and poor, and the mechanisms that link wealth and impoverishment. Stewart Lansley traces the way financiers and executives have ruthlessly exploited their power to extract existing wealth at the cost of livelihoods and social resilience. He examines the bitter ideological rifts that have driven society back to the divisions of the past and asks why rich and poor citizens are judged by very different standards, and why the ‘cycle of privilege’ is as embedded today as it was a century earlier.

Ciaran Hughes, Ulster University and
Markus Ketola, University of Edinburgh

"Traces the [voluntary] sector's pivotal role during and beyond the conflict and questions 'where the heart and soul of the sector now lies'."

COLIN KNOX, NAZARBAYEV UNIVERSITY

Tracing the changing relationships between government, voluntary and community organisations since the Good Friday Agreement, this text explores the unique constructions and consequences of neoliberal policies on the voluntary sector and civil society in Northern Ireland. With lessons about the impact of neoliberal policies on governance, relationships and the peace process, this study explores how a core part of civil society has been shaped by both local policy priorities and broader political and economic processes.

Reconsidering Policy

Complexity, Governance and the State

Kate Crowley, University of Tasmania, Jenny Stewart, UNSW Canberra, Adrian Kay, Australian National University and Brian W. Head, University of Queensland

“By focusing on the contribution of policy theory to policy analysis, the authors ... show how to produce practical lessons for problem-solving.”
PAUL CAIRNEY, UNIVERSITY OF STIRLING

For nation states, the contexts for developing and implementing policy have become more complex and demanding. This book reconsiders traditional policy-analytic concepts, and redevelops and extends new ones, in a melded approach defined as systemic institutionalism. It links policy with governance and the state and suggests how real-world issues might be substantively addressed.

Transformational Moments in Social Welfare

What Role for Voluntary Action?

Georgina Brewis, University College London,
Angela Ellis Paine, University of Birmingham,
Irene Hardill, Northumbria University,
Rose Lindsey, University of Southampton and
Rob Macmillan, Sheffield Hallam University

"An enjoyable and accessible read for anyone who asks the voluntary sector 'Who do you think you are?'"

KARL WILDING, INDEPENDENT ANALYST AND CONSULTANT

EPDF and EPUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC licence.

During the consolidation of the welfare state in the 1940s, and its reshaping in the 2010s, the boundaries between the state, voluntary action, the family and the market were called into question. This book explores the impact of these 'transformational moments' on the role, position and contribution of voluntary action to social welfare.

Public Service Motivation?

Rethinking What Motivates Public Actors

Christopher O'Leary, Manchester Metropolitan University

Christopher O'Leary looks afresh at the reasons for prosocial work choices in the first substantive critique of Public Service Motivation (PSM).

He proposes an alternative theory for why people choose to work in the public and third sectors, rooted in rational choice theory, that shows how public servants are expressly motivated to confirm their values and identity through their work.

Ageing and the Crisis in Health and Social Care

Global and National Perspectives

Bethany Simmonds, University of Portsmouth

Drawing on examples from Germany, Sweden and the UK, this book examines how the neoliberalisation and marketisation of health and social care have created an adverse environment for older people, who lack social and cultural capital to access the care they need. This crucial analysis scrutinises provision for ageing populations on an individual, national and global level.

Dementia and Place

Practices, Experiences and Connections

Edited by Richard Ward, University of Stirling, Andrew Clark,
University of Salford and Lyn Phillipson, University of Wollongong

"The potential to enrich social health of people with dementia is convincingly demonstrated in this insightful book."

MYRRA VERNOOIJ-DASSEN, RADBOD UNIVERSITY MEDICAL CENTER

Giving voice to the lived experiences of people with dementia across the globe, including Australia, Canada, Sweden and the UK, this critical and evidence-based collection engages with the realities of life for people living with dementia at home and within their neighbourhoods.

This insightful text addresses the fundamental social aspects of environment, including place attachment, belonging and connectivity. The chapters reveal the potential and expose the challenges for practitioners and researchers as dementia care shifts to a neighbourhood setting.

The unique 'neighbourhood-centred' perspective provides an innovative guide for policy and practice and calls for a new place-based culture of care and support in the neighbourhood.

Medical Doctors in Health Reforms

A Comparative Study of England and Canada

Jean-Louis Denis, University of Montreal,
Sabrina Germain, City, University of London,
Catherine Régis, University of Montreal and
Gianluca Veronesi, University of Bristol

This timely comparative study assesses the role of medical doctors in reforming publicly funded health services in England and Canada.

Respected authors from health and legal backgrounds from both sides of the Atlantic consider how the high status of the profession uniquely influences reforms. With summaries of developments in models of care and the participation of doctors since the inception of publicly funded healthcare systems, they ask whether professionals might be considered allies or enemies of policy makers.

With insights for future health policy and research, the book is an important contribution to debates about the complex relationship between doctors and the systems in which they practise.

The Strengths Approach in Practice

How it Changes Lives

Avril Bellinger and Deirdre Ford, Plymouth University and Students and Refugees Together (START)

In a climate emergency the strengths approach is needed now more than ever. Commonly misunderstood, its true power as a whole systems approach to release the potential of individuals, communities and their environments has been neglected. For those brave enough, this book offers theoretical and practical encouragement.

The authors use a case study of their work with a unique NGO in the UK that combines student placements with support to refugees. They illustrate what it really means to adopt a strengths approach in practice. Chapters include the strengths approach to funding, organisational development, management and governance as well as immigration law, student learning and research.

This book will give readers grounds for optimism as well as transferable practices for challenging social injustice.

Support and Protection Across the Lifecourse

A Practical Approach for Social Workers

Caroline McGregor and Pat Dolan, UNESCO Child and Family Research Centre NUI Galway

"Makes an important contribution to how students are supported to think about the lifecourse from both the perspective of their service users and their own practice."

JOHN DEVANEY, UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH

Crossing the traditional divide between social work with children and families and adults, this text applies a lifecourse perspective, within an ecological frame. Based on the principle that practice drives theory, a practical approach for social work is put forward using five interconnected themes:

- duality of support and protection
- life transitions and life events
- intergenerational relations
- civic partnership and engagement
- health and wellbeing

Designed for students and practitioners, this text takes an enquiry-based approach using Critical ART (analysis, reflection and thinking). The book features:

- case studies
- research examples
- tips for Critical ART in practice
- further reading and resources

Retreat or Resolution?

Tackling the Crisis of Mass Higher Education

Peter Scott, University College London

"An eagerly awaited investigation of major debates and challenges concerning the purposes of mass higher education in the contemporary world by one of the leading scholars in the field..."

MARIA SLOWEY, HIGHER EDUCATION RESEARCH CENTRE, DUBLIN CITY UNIVERSITY

Although higher education in the UK has expanded opportunities for much of the population, in many ways it remains stubbornly elitist. Peter Scott, a leading expert and unique voice, examines the development of mass higher education and proposes a 'radical escape-forward'. He calls for more robust action to secure fair access at all levels and changes in the governance and management at both system and institutional levels to ensure more democratic accountability.

Creative Universities

Reimagining Education for Global Challenges and Alternative Futures

Anke Schwittay, University of Sussex

"This is a timely, important and optimistic book – a conceptual and practical antidote to the challenges of our times."

CRAIG HAMMOND, LIVERPOOL JOHN MOORES UNIVERSITY

How can higher education contribute to tackling today's complex challenges?

In this wide-ranging book, Anke Schwittay argues that, in order to inspire and equip students to generate better responses to global challenges, we need a pedagogy that develops their imagination, creativity, emotional sensibilities and practical capabilities.

Schwittay proposes a critical-creative pedagogy that incorporates design-based activities, experiential teaching, serious play and future-oriented practices. Crucially, she demonstrates the importance of moving beyond analysing limitations to working towards alternatives for more equitable, just and sustainable futures.

Presenting concrete ideas for the reimagination of higher education, this book is an essential read for both educators and students in any field studying global challenges.

Reforming the UK's Citizenship Test

Building Bridges, Not Barriers

Thom Brooks, Durham University

"An important addition to literature on British citizenship which provides a much-needed critique of the citizenship test"

DEVYANI PRABHAT, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

Drawing on first-hand experience, as well as interviews with key figures including past Home Secretaries, this book exposes the UK's citizenship test as ineffective and a barrier to citizenship.

With the launch of a new post-Brexit immigration system, this is a critical time to change the test. This accessible guide offers recommendations for transforming the UK's citizenship test into a bridge to citizenship which fosters greater inclusion and integration.

The People in Question

Citizens and Constitutions in Uncertain Times

Jo Shaw, University of Edinburgh and Tampere University

“A broad-ranging tour de force that elegantly and uncompromisingly guides the reader through various battles of belonging, all waged under the auspices of constitutional law.”

OXFORD JOURNAL OF LEGAL STUDIES

At a time of rising populism and debate about immigration, this book reviews interactions between constitutions and constructs of citizenship. It offers the first sustained treatment of citizenship and constitutional law in a comparative and transnational perspective. Drawing on global examples, it assesses how countries' legal, political and cultural processes help to determine the boundaries of citizenship.

Advancing Children's Rights in Detention

A Model for International Reform

Ursula Kilkelly, University College Cork and
Pat Bergin, National Forensic Mental Health Service, Ireland

"A must-read for every child rights advocate who cares about youth justice."

NANCY E. DOWD, UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA

Applying a child-centred model of detention that fulfils the rights of the child under the five themes of provision, protection, participation, preparation and partnership, this book illustrates how reform can happen.

Drawing on Ireland's experience of transforming law, policy and practice and combining theory with real-life experiences, it demonstrates how children's rights can be implemented in detention.

Experiences of Criminal Justice

Perspectives From Wales on a System in Crisis

Daniel Newman and Roxanna Dehaghani,
Cardiff University

Austerity continues to impact the criminal justice process in England and Wales. Drawing on first-hand accounts of lawyers, police, suspects, the convicted and their families in South Wales, this book uncovers how these individuals navigate the challenges caused by austerity, what has changed and what can be done to improve the criminal justice system.

Prisons of the World

Andrew Coyle, University of London

"An outstanding book, written by someone who has dedicated his life to international penal reform. It is unlike any other in its scope, humanity and clear political message."

ALISON LIEBLING, UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

"Andrew Coyle argues convincingly that taking a Human Development approach would lead to a dramatically reduced need for prison. A must-read book for politicians, policy makers, advocates for justice, as well as those who think our prisons are serving us well."

EILEEN BALDRY, UNIVERSITY OF NEW SOUTH WALES

"Who better than an enlightened Governor of Prisons and Professor in Prison Studies to discredit the belief that by locking up offenders we are reforming them? In a thoroughly readable first-hand account of imprisonment and criminal justice systems around the world Professor Coyle has conveyed a universally applicable message: 'Prisons can damage people'; they need a hard second look."

RANI DHAVAN SHANKARDASS, PENAL REFORM AND JUSTICE ASSOCIATION (PRAJA) (INDIA)

How do governments and societies use prison to respond to underlying and fundamental social, economic and political issues? Using data on world imprisonment and numerous international examples from his personal experience, Coyle, a prison practitioner, academic and international expert, discusses the failings of prison around the world.

Acknowledging the influence of external agencies, such as the Committee for the Prevention of Torture, the Inter-American Court of Human Rights and court interventions in the use of solitary confinement, he offers some positive pointers for the future and how there might be a better distribution of resources between criminal justice and social justice by an application of the principles of justice reinvestment.

Giving Voice to Diversity in Criminological Research

'Nothing about Us without Us'

Edited by Orla Lynch, James Windle and Yasmine Ahmed, University College Cork

"Responding to the history and call of 'Nothing about us, without us', this collection of essays clearly shows how and why criminological theory and criminal justice policy is ineffectual without such participation and inclusion."

DYLAN KERRIGAN, UNIVERSITY OF LEICESTER

Incorporating the experiences of service users, academics, state and grassroots practitioners, this volume captures the voices of marginalised groups and explores how criminology can authentically incorporate these voices.

Minority Ethnic Prisoners and the COVID-19 Lockdown

Issues, Impacts and Implications

Avril Brandon, Maynooth University and
Gavin Dingwall, De Montfort University

"Thoroughly researched and expertly written, this book makes a vital contribution to the battle for racial equity in criminal justice. Providing profound insights into the legacy of the pandemic, Brandon and Dingwall's work will have a lasting - and truly global - impact."

RT. HON. DAVID LAMMY MP, SHADOW
SECRETARY OF STATE FOR JUSTICE

This insightful book identifies the risks posed by prison lockdowns to minority ethnic prisoners, foreign national prisoners and prisoners from Traveller and Roma communities across the UK and the Republic of Ireland. It documents the unequal impacts on their mental and physical health, feelings of isolation and fear, access to services and contact with visitors.

Criminal Women

Gender Matters

Sharon Grace, University of York, Maggie O'Neill, University College Cork, Tammi Walker and Hannah King, Durham University, Lucy Baldwin, De Montfort University, Alison Jobe, Durham University, Orla Lynch, University College Cork, Fiona Measham, University of Liverpool, Kate O'Brien, Durham University and Vicky Seaman, University College Cork

Accounts of female offenders' journeys into the criminal justice system are often silenced or marginalised.

Featuring a Foreword from Pat Carlen and inspired by her seminal book 'Criminal Women', this collection uses participatory, inclusive and narrative methodologies to highlight the lived experiences of women involved with the criminal justice system. It presents studies focused on drug use and supply, sex work, sexual exploitation and experiences of imprisonment.

Bringing together cutting-edge feminist research, this book exposes the intersecting oppressions and social control often central to women's experiences of the justice system and offers invaluable insights for developing penal policies which account for the needs of women.

Land Renewed

Reworking the Countryside

Peter Hetherington, journalist

"Peter Hetherington's book is a delight to read. He explores how restoring nature can lead to better farming practice and food production, address climate change and strengthen the rural economy."

SALLY SHORTALL, NEWCASTLE UNIVERSITY

"Wide-ranging, stimulating, provocative and at times enraging, the book is packed with practical insights into a big, too often neglected question: how should we use our land?"

SHAUN SPIERS, GREEN ALLIANCE

Feeding Britain while preparing for the ravages of climate change are two key issues – yet there's no strategy for managing and enhancing that most precious resource: our land. This book explores how the pressures of leaving the EU, recovering from the COVID-19 pandemic and addressing global heating present unparalleled opportunities to rework the countryside for the benefit of all.

Incorporating personal, inspiring stories of people and places, Peter Hetherington sets out the innovative measures needed for nature's recovery while protecting our most valuable farmland, encouraging local food production and 're-peopling' remote areas. In the first book to tackle these issues holistically, he argues that we need to reshape the countryside with an adventurous new agenda at the heart of government.

Political Ecologies of Landscape

Governing Urban Transformations in Penang

Creighton Connolly, University of Lincoln

Drawing on the recent changes in the Malaysian state of Penang, this book opens up new perspectives on urban development, governance and the politics of place. Reviewing the role of residents, activists, planners and other experts in socio-natural changes and urban regeneration, it builds an important new framework of landscape political ecology.

Inside High-Rise Housing

Condominium and Home in the Vertical City

Megan Nethercote, RMIT University

Informed by residents' accounts of Australian high-rise living, this book shows how legal and physical architectures fuse in ways that jeopardise residents' experience of home and stigmatise renters.

As cities sprawl skywards and private renting expands, this compelling geographic analysis of property identifies high-rise development's overlooked hand in social segregation and urban fragmentation and raises bold questions about the condominium's prospects.

Managing Cities at Night

A Practitioner Guide to the Urban Governance of the Night-Time Economy

Michele Acuto, University of Melbourne, Andreina Seijas, Harvard University, Jenny McArthur, University College London and Enora Robin, University of Sheffield

"This book brings tremendous value to the emerging policy field of night-time governance. As the former Amsterdam night mayor, I value this analysis of the governance of the night-time economy in cities for practitioners and newcomers alike."

MIRIK MILAN, VIBELAB

Urban experts consider the future of night-time economies' governance in this accessible guide. Using global case studies, they investigate the role of public and private sectors and leaders in shaping urban planning and policy.

Care and the City

Ethics of Urbanism

Juliet Davis, Cardiff University

"This unique, timely book shows how urban design can change for the better if it recognises interdependence and dependence as basic to how cities are organised – in short, by becoming care-full."

CHRISTOPHER GROVES, CARDIFF UNIVERSITY

This original study makes a compelling case for a more ethical approach to urban development and management. Countering conventional thinking, it uses case studies to show how a philosophy of caring can promote the wellbeing of our cities' many inhabitants.

The Gendered Face of COVID-19

The Development, Gender and Health Nexus in the Global South

Jean Grugel and Matt Barlow, University of York, Maria Eugenia Giraudo, Durham University, Tallulah Lines and Jessica Omukuti, University of York

This important book draws on research across sub-Saharan Africa and Latin America to assess what the COVID-19 pandemic means for gender inequalities in the Global South, examining how threats to equitable development will impact the most marginalised and at-risk women and girls in particular.

It is a guide to stimulate the important debate about how to promote women's rights during the management and recovery phases of the pandemic.

Concrete Cities

Why We Need to Build Differently

Rob Imrie, University of London

"Interesting and stimulating. It is well written, and I loved reading it... the book is an important contribution to the existing literature."

DAVID CLAPHAM, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

"With clarity, insight, and persuasive evidence, Concrete Cities shows that the drive to build is a cultural logic rooted in extractive practices, which ought to be replaced with more care for people – human and non-human. This book is essential reading for urbanists, geographers, and others committed to more liveable worlds."

AIMI HAMRAIE, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

"With madness of 'build, baby, build' tragically ascendant, even hegemonic, Rob Imrie's powerful, wide-ranging, and fascinating book systematically and cogently injects urgently needed sanity and judiciousness into the policy discourse."

DAVID IMBROSCIO, UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

This accessible critique of urban construction reimagines city development and life in an era of unprecedented building.

Exploring the proliferation of building and construction, Imrie sets out its many degrading impacts on both people and the environment. Using examples from around the world, he illustrates how construction is motivated by economic and political ideologies rather than actual need, and calls for a more sensitive, humane and nature-focused culture of construction.

This compelling book calls for radical changes to city living and environments by building less, but better.

"Challenges understandings of urban vacancy to expose its complexities, its vibrant politics and possibilities. It will be a key resource for urbanists, especially as they address cities' emergence from COVID-19."

PAULINE MCGUIRK, UNIVERSITY OF WOLLONGONG

This book provides an innovative perspective to consider contemporary urban challenges through the lens of urban vacancy. The contributors develop new empirical insights that rethink ruination, urban development and political contestation over the reuse of vacant spaces in post-crisis cities across the globe.

The Short Guide to Community Development

3rd edition

Alison Gilchrist, community development consultant and Marilyn Taylor, University of the West of England

“Community development has undergone substantial changes in the past five years. This extensively revised edition of the Short Guide captures those changes succinctly and accessibly. Crucially, it poses a number of important challenges for the future of community development values, theory and practice. Essential reading.”

ANGUS MCCABE, UNIVERSITY OF BIRMINGHAM

“This excellent, elegant and easily digestible guide, written by two leading experts, cuts through the mystique to show precisely what community development should and should not be about.”

GARY CRAIG, DURHAM UNIVERSITY

The only up-to-date, accessibly written short guide to community development, this third edition offers an invaluable and authoritative introduction. A key text for all students and practitioners working with communities, it includes:

- a broad overview of core themes, concepts, basic practices and key issues in community development;
- an analysis of the impact of COVID-19 on community life and wellbeing, along with the implications for longer-term community support;
- additional brand-new content on the pressing issues of democratic decline, social fragmentation and isolation, social care pressures, technological developments and climate change.

Journals

Our journals programme continues to go from strength to strength, with the list growing substantially in recent years. We now publish 18 titles across the social sciences, many of them interdisciplinary in focus. We are delighted that Policy & Politics had its highest ever Impact Factor in the Journal Citation Reports and that our newer journals, Emotions and Society, the Journal of Psychosocial Studies and the Journal of Public Finance and Public Choice have been accepted into Scopus. This year we are also celebrating the 10th anniversary of Families, Relationships and Societies.

We are excited to announce the call for papers for our first fully Open Access title: Global Social Challenges Journal (see pages 4 and 5). This mission-driven journal will address the most urgent complexities of global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines.

Our portfolio is set to grow even further in 2022 with the launch of Global Political Economy and the relaunch of Justice, Power and Resistance. Other titles are in development and we are planning a number of Open Access initiatives and special issues in response to COVID-19.

Ebooks

All our books are available as epub and ePDFs and available through a wide range of eBook providers.

Library customers can purchase our eBooks from a range of digital platforms and library aggregators, including: JSTOR, EBSCO, ProQuest, IG Publishing and CNEIPC.

Our digital monograph collections are available through Policy Press Scholarship Online (PPSO) in partnership with Oxford University Press, and will be launching in Cambridge Core and Project Muse in Spring 2021.

Our etextbooks are available to buy through Kortext, VitalSource and Perlego. Individual eBooks are also available from online bookshops including: Amazon Kindle, Google Play, Kobo and eBooks.com.

You can purchase eBooks (ePUB) directly from us at bristoluniversitypress.co.uk. If you buy an EPUB on our website, you will need to read it using Adobe Digital Editions (ADE) reader software as our eBooks are DRM-protected. To download ADE on your computer, go here.
